

Abigail Spindel is an award winning editor based in São Paulo, Brazil. She has worked on documentaries, TV series, and magazine news.

She and her partner Paulo Cesar Toledo own Videosfera Multimedia, a small Brazilian production company that is also available for foreign projects and crews. Their first film, which they made for the price of coffee and their time, Waiting for B., opened in Copenhagen, traveled the world from Zanzibar to Moscow in festivals, and won best picture at São Paulo's Mix Brasil festival. She is now working on a project about politics, and Paulo is working on one about a writer.

Abigail is available to work with teenagers and children. Here is a PSA she did as a volunteer with students at Redan High, while on a job for MTV's MADE. To schedule a group film class with Abby, email here. Abby and Paulo are traveling the States on an educational tour, talking about their film Waiting for B. in the context of the Brazilian political state.

To book them for a talk, please email here.

For more information:

Videosfera Multimedia

LinkedIn